

SMITH CEMETERY - Before 1831 - SE corner of Nassan and Rona Roads, Woodlawn. Burial place of Nicholas Smith (1798-1873) and family. Smith was an agent on the Underground Railroad according to family traditions not revealed until the 1977 Woodlawn Bicentennial. The Bicentennial book held that he, as a cooper or master barrellmaker, was able to transport escaped slaves in newly crafted barrels and take them to the next safe-house, a location still not known. The cemetery was reserved to the Smith descendants when Daniel Smith sold the farm in 1885 (See Deeds WMI 148:398).

BA-2475
Smith Cemetery
Nasan & Rona Roads, Woodlawn
Baltimore East quad

Google Earth image, c. 2007

Tax Map 88, p. 625

